

From Cath Rose, a GP living in Clifton and working in a Bloxham practice

A GP's new working practice

During the pandemic, my work has changed from 90% face-to-face consultations to spending 90% of my time speaking to patients on the phone or communicating via texts or email. It's probably not what most doctors envisaged when they entered the profession. The photo summarises my lockdown in a nutshell: my work phone and my PPE.
