

Dads grandfather
 Thomas Hant went out to Jamaica to boss the [redacted] on his uncles plantation, who had been living there and was perhaps dead at the time Thomas had fever bad and thought oranges cured him, which the doctors had forbidden him to have.

Whilst returning from Jamaica he was seized by press gang at London and had to go for a sailor.
 He had his discharge because his big toe was smashed between the boat and vessel.

This would be about 1790 a sailor of years.

went to London for his pension
