CUTESLOWE, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish 3 miles north-north-west from Oxford, with a halt at Oxford Road, on the Bicester and Oxford section of the London and North Western railway, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Wootton, petty sessional division of Bullingdon, union of Woodstock, and county court district of Oxford. It has no church, the inhabitants attending the church at Wolvercote. In this parish is one of the new cemeteries formed by the Corporation of Oxford: the site, purchased in 1889 by the late Oxford Local Board, for a sum of £2,600, besides £48 for legal charges, comprises 13ac. 1r. 34p. and has been well laid out and a mortuary chapel and lodge erected at a further cost of about £5,800; it is under the control of a committee of the Corporation. CUXHAM is a village and parish 2½ miles west from Watlington terminal station on the Princes Risborough and Watlington branch of the Great Western railway, 4 south-west from Tetsworth and 6½ north-east from Wallingford, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Ewelme, petty sessional division of Watlington, county court district of Wallingford, union of Henley, rural deanery of Aston and archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford. A stream passes through this parish, which turns several mills. The church of the Holy Rood is an ancient edifice of stone, apparently rebuilt of old materials at the beginning of the 18th century, and consists of chancel, nave, western porch and a western tower containing 3 small bells: a Norman west doorway with twisted shafts and sculptured capitals remains: there is a plain round font of the same date, and the lower part of the tower also exhibits traces of Norman work: on the north side are some good Perpendicular windows; a few good open oak benches remain, and there is an hour-glass stand: the church contains several tablets and a brass to John Gregory, 1506, and his wives Petronilla and Agnes, with four children; the church was restored in 1850, and in 1895 the chancel was entirely rebuilt in the Gothic style of the 14th century:

DEDDINGTON, the "Town of the Dædings," formerly a market town, is a parish and small town situated at the intersection of the high road from Oxford to Banbury with that from Buckingham to Chipping Norton, separated from Northamptonshire on the east by the river Cherwell and bounded on the north by the Swere brook, it is 2 miles west from Aynho Park station on the London and Birmingham section of the Great Western railway and 2½ miles south-east from Adderbury station on the Banbury and Cheltenham section of the same system, completed in April, 1887, 6 south from Banbury, 10 north-east from Woodstock, 16 from Oxford and 70 from London, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Wootton, North Wootton petty sessional division, county court district and union of Woodstock, rural deanery of Deddington, and archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford. The supply of water is from wells. The streets are wide, and there is a spacious market square, the whole being now lined with trees planted in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, originally of the Decorated period, is now a building of stone in mixed styles, consisting of chancel with clerestory, clerestoried nave, aisles, north and south porches and a western tower surmounted by pinnacles and containing a clock and 7 bells, 6 of which were cast in 1791, and the small bell in 1869: on the west front of the tower, within recesses, are life size figures of the patron saints, replaced from the old tower: in principal landowners are Christ Church, Oxford, and Miss Gregory. The soil is clay and loam; subsoil, gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans; the area is 282 acres; rateable value, £407; the population in 1901 was 24.

This parish is reputed to be extra-parochial for ecclesiastical purposes.

The children of this place attend the schools at Wolvercote

Letters through Oxford arrive about 7.30 a.m.; Pillar Box cleared at 6.12 p.m.; sundays, 6.5 p.m. Summertown, Oxford, 3 miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office the church affords 120 sittings: in the churchyard lies a stone coffin. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1578; marriages, 1577; burials, 1580. The living is a rectory, with that of Easington annexed, joint net yearly value £150, with 32 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Merton College, Oxford, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Lorenzo Player Fedden M.A. of that college. The Warden and Fellows of Merton College are lords of the manor and own most of the land, but there are some smaller owners. The soil is good loam; subsoil, rubble. The chief crops are wheat, beans, roots and barley. The area is 491 acres; rateable value, £664; the population in 1901 was 130.

Elementary School (mixed), for 35 children; average attendance, 23; Miss M. A. Fernley, mistress. A new school is now (1911) in course of erection the chancel are three sedilia and a piscina, and in a deep arched recess on the south side of the chancel, is a small square-headed low-side window, with a seat below it: an oak screen separates the chancel from the nave, which has arcades of four arches: the aisles are chiefly of the 14th century and in each remain steps formerly leading to the rood lofts of two chantry chapels at the east end of the aisles, and of which the platforms remain: underneath the east end of the south aisle is a small low crypt, with groined roof, reached by steps from the outside, where also are two recessed stone arches, and on the inside, but in a different part of the wall, two similar arches, in one of which is a mutilated recumbent figure: there are also some remains of a stairway once conducting to a parvise over the south porch: a piscina and statue niche remain in the north aisle, the porch of which, of the 15th century, has fan tracery in the roof: the tower fell in March, 1635, occasioning an estimated damage of £3,250, and letters patent were issued authorizing general collections for its restoration: the font, as appears from the registers, was placed in the church in 1663. Various alterations were begun in the church during the vicariate of the late Rev. William Cotton Risley M.A. vicar, 1836-48, and a continuance of the work was sanctioned by the vestry in 1858, but it was not completed until 1865, when the vestry, south porch and organ chamber were built and repairs effected at a cost of £2,600 under the direction of the late G. E. Street esq. R.A.:

the stained east window was placed there in 1888 by subscription. There are brasses in the church to a civilian, with half-effigy, c. 1370; John Higgins gent. 1641, and a mutilated brass inscription to William Byllyng, merchant of the staple of Calais, 1533, and Elizabeth, his wife, 1522; this inscription, with effigies now lost, belongs to an altar tomb in the north aisle; there are memorials to the families of Appletree, Cary, Churchill, Faulkner, Harris, Walden and many others: the tower and bells were restored in 1893, as also the weather vanes, at a cost of £274: there are 800 sittings. The churchyard was enlarged in 1874. The register dates from the year 1631, and contains entries of marriages effected under the Act of 1656. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £275, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Thomas Boniface M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and surrogate. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners allow £120 for the curate. The Congregational chapel, in New street, opened May, 1881, is a building of simple Early Gothic character, with a gabled central doorway and an octagonal turret above it, rising to a height of 60 feet: there are sittings for about 280. There is also a Wesleyan Reform chapel, built in 1849. Sir Thomas Pope kt. founder of Trinity College, Oxford, was born here in 1508, and Sir William Scroggs kt. Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench (1678-81), in 1623: Ethelmar or Audomar de Valence, half-brother to Henry III. was instituted vicar of Deddington in 1247; in 1260 he became Bishop of Winchester, but dying in the following year at Paris, his body was there buried in the church of Ste. Genevieve, but his heart, at his own request, was immured at Winchester Cathedral on the north side of the choir, where there is an inscription with the date 1261. The old Town hall, standing on the west side of the square, is a gabled structure of brick, originally on open arches, but these are now built up. A fair is held on the 22nd of November. There are almshouses for four men and four women, with an endowment of £72 yearly, derived from the feoffees' lands of 43 acres, which produce about £85 yearly. Cartwright's charity of £6 yearly is for bread. This place and Hempton are mentioned in the Domesday Survey of 1086, as amongst the possessions of Odo, Bishop of Bayeux, under the names of "Dadintone," and "Hantone." The ancient rectory house (or great house) was built in the 16th century, the Plough Inn, in New street, together with a house on the Clifton road, bearing the date 1647, and the Hermitage, situated in Market square, and now the residence of Geo. Coggins esq. have each some interesting portions of old work, the former retaining a vaulted cellar. The site of the ancient castle is indicated by a series of ramparts of earth to the east of the town: the fosse, which can also be traced, is the boundary of the present enclosure commonly known as "the Castle Ground," which is used as a parochial recreation ground and managed by a syndicate. The Dean and Canons of Windsor, Christ Church, Oxford, and William Cornwallis Cartwright esq. of Aynho, are lords of the manors. The principal landowners are Christ Church, Oxford, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The land is arable and pasture; soil, light red land. The entire area of the parish is 4,260 acres of land and 11 of water; assessable value, £8,114; the entire population of the parish in 1901 was 1,490.

CLIFTON is a chapelry and hamlet of Deddington, on the road from Aynho station to Deddington, and about a mile and a half east on the Northants border, skirted by the river Cherwell, the Oxford and Birmingham canal and the Great Western railway. The church of St. James, consecrated June 10th, 1853, is a plain building of stone, consisting of nave, with south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells, and was built chiefly at the expense of the late Rev. W. C. Risley M.A. vicar of Deddington, 1836-48; the clergy of Deddington officiate. The principal landowners are Christ Church, Oxford, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and W. C. Cartwright esq. of Aynho.

Wall Letter Box, cleared at 8.40 a.m. & 12.55 & 7.15 p.m. Letters arrive 9 a.m.

HEMPTON is a small hamlet in the parish of Deddington, a mile and a quarter west from the village, on the road to Chipping Norton. The Church of St. John the Evangelist, built at the cost of the late Rev. William Wilson D.D. of Over Worton, consists of nave with north aisle (used as a school) and a bell-cote containing one bell: the font was formerly in the old church at Over Worton: the building is the property of trustees, and is licensed but unconsecrated: it is served from Deddington: there are 100 sittings. Here is a Congregational Mission Hall, erected in 1828, seating 80 persons. The poor's land of 7 acres, awarded in 1808, produces £8 yearly for fuel.

Wall Letter Box, cleared at 6.40 a.m. & 6.15 p.m.
